

Science w/c 8.6.20

Last week, we asked you to draw and label the digestive tract. This included explaining what each part of the body does.

This week, we would like you to write a diary entry as though you were a piece of food about to be eaten from being picked up and put into the mouth. Describing what it feels like and what it is like as you travel through the different parts of the digestive tract.

You can make this humorous if you wish but remember to include description using the five senses, feelings and time related words. You will obviously need to use your imagination.

As it is a scientific task, we would like you to include some scientific words. We have included a list to help you but you do not have to use them all.

VOCABULARY LIST.

molars
canines
incisors
saliva
salivary amylase
oesophagus
peristalsis
stomach
bile
liver
pancreas
large intestine
small intestine

The videos and websites have been put back on the website this week.

We hope you enjoy this task and we look forward to seeing your entries on Seesaw.
